CLIENT CASE STUDY

Fire Recovery and Refurbishment for Britannia Hotels

Following a significant fire that damaged large parts of the Grade II-listed Royal Albion Hotel in Brighton, Britannia Hotels appointed The Bloomsbury Group to lead the complex recovery and refurbishment effort.

Our role began with immediate on-site coordination to make the structure safe, working closely with structural engineers, insurance teams, and conservation officers. We established temporary works, safe access routes, and protective measures to stabilise the site for investigation.

With extensive fire and smoke damage across multiple wings, we undertook a detailed strip-out while preserving key heritage features. Our specialist teams managed waste removal, asbestos surveys, and facade protection — all within a challenging seafront location with public access constraints.

Case Study

Fire recovery, reimagined.

Throughout the project, we worked hand-in-hand with loss adjusters, fire engineers, and local authorities to ensure compliance, transparency, and minimal disruption to the surrounding area.

The reinstatement programme involved careful restoration of period details alongside modern fire-stopping, passive protection upgrades, and a full reconfiguration of M&E systems to meet current safety standards.

This project reflects our unique capability in large-scale hotel recovery — where listed status, live environments, and urgent safety timelines demand experience, agility, and absolute precision.

Sustainability

The built environment accounts for nearly 40% of global carbon emissions. At The Bloomsbury Group, we take our responsibility seriously – and our hotel refurbishment work is guided by sustainable principles at every stage.

We're committed to helping our clients meet their Net Zero targets. Whether it's reducing embodied carbon in material choices, improving energy performance in M&E systems, or reducing waste on site, our teams actively seek out greener ways to build.

We also track our own environmental impact across all sites, reporting on fuel use, material waste, and supply chain miles. Many of our clients – especially those within corporate ESG frameworks – rely on us to help them achieve sustainability benchmarks without compromising quality or guest experience.

HEALTH & SAFETY

A Culture of Care and Compliance

Customers Trying to in-house manage contractors have had serious fines CDM compliance, we take the risk out of your project

Our reputation is built not just on the quality of our work, but the integrity of how we operate. Health & Safety isn't a tick-box exercise for us – it's a company-wide culture.

Health & Safety

We operate under a rigorous Health & Safety management system that complies with all UK and international regulations. Every site is governed by tailored RAMS documentation, detailed induction processes, and continuous auditing.

We understand the risks of working within live hotels and occupied spaces. Guest and staff safety is paramount, and our phased programmes, signage, temporary barriers, and out-of-hours work ensure minimal disruption with zero compromise on safety.

CDM COMPLIANCE:

Why Professional Oversight Matters More Than Ever

Too often, clients attempt to manage multiple contractors in-house during refurbishment projects—especially under time pressure or tight budgets. While this may appear cost-effective on the surface, the consequences can be serious.

Lack of clear responsibilities, poor documentation, uncoordinated trades, and inadequate Health & Safety planning can expose dutyholders to legal risk under the CDM 2015 Regulations. Worse still, it can lead to unsafe sites, costly project delays, or—in the most tragic cases—serious injury.

At The Bloomsbury Group, CDM compliance is embedded in everything we do. From day one, we ensure all legal duties are met and that everyone involved in your project understands their role, their responsibilities, and the standards required.

CDM Compliance

Your Legal Obligations – Our Expert Management

Whether you're a hotel owner, asset manager, or procurement lead, if you're commissioning construction work, you have legal responsibilities under CDM.

These include:

- Appointing competent Principal Designers and Principal Contractors
- Ensuring a suitable Construction Phase Plan is in place
- Verifying risk assessments, method statements (RAMS), and welfare provisions
- Retaining key documentation like the Health & Safety file for future use

We act as both Principal Contractor and can advise your Principal Designer to ensure the full scope of CDM duties are fulfilled. Our team handles everything—from site logistics and access control, to RAMS approvals, workforce inductions, and H&S inspections—so you're never exposed.

Why It Matters

In-house attempts to manage trades directly often result in:

- Blurred accountability and regulatory non-compliance
- Unsafe working conditions and site accidents
- Insurance complications and invalidated warranties
- Fines or legal action from the HSE
- Significant reputational and financial damage

PROACTIVE MAINTENANCE

Our Traffic Light System, Guarantees & Proactive Maintenance

At The Bloomsbury Group, our responsibility to clients doesn't end when the build is finished. That's why we've developed a clear and dependable aftercare process that ensures continued performance and lasting peace of mind long after handover.

Our bespoke Traffic Light System is designed to simplify how facilities teams and operators manage post-project upkeep. Every asset or element we install is tagged with a traffic light status—Green (new/low-risk), Amber (mid-life/monitor), or Red (end-of-life/replacement advised)—making it easy to plan maintenance budgets, prioritise works, and minimise unexpected failures.

This structured asset health check is included as standard at handover and forms the basis of our Proactive Maintenance Packages. We don't just respond when something goes wrong—we schedule pre-planned inspections, offer targeted repairs, and keep key systems running at optimal efficiency to extend the life of your investment.

Maintenance

What's Included:

- Full post-project asset register with colour-coded status
- Scheduled inspections and servicing, tailored to your asset list
- Emergency call-out options for critical systems
- Warranty tracking and component lifecycle monitoring
- Optional upgrades as part of life-cycle refurbishment planning

In parallel, we provide comprehensive insurance-backed guarantees for all works. These cover workmanship, materials, and systems installed by our team or approved subcontractors. Our long-standing insurer partnerships give clients additional assurance that, even in the rare event of a problem, we have the backing to put it right quickly.

PROACTIVE APPROACH

FIRE SUPPRESSION SYSTEMS

Discreet Protection, Designed for Life Safety

In the hospitality sector, fire safety isn't just a compliance requirement — it's a matter of reputation, guest security, and operational continuity. At The Bloomsbury Group, we integrate cutting-edge fire suppression systems into our hotel refurbishment projects with precision, discretion, and full regulatory compliance.

Whether it's a heritage-listed property, a modern city hotel, or a spa and wellness retreat, we work alongside expert fire engineers and building control authorities to deliver best-in-class solutions tailored to the specific risks and layout of your premises.

Why Early Design Integration Matters

Retrofitting fire suppression in later project stages can be costly, invasive, and non-compliant. That's why we involve fire system designers early — coordinating with architects, HVAC engineers, and interior designers to ensure optimal placement, unobtrusive installation, and easy maintenance access.

Fire Suppression

Hotels contain complex, high-risk environments — kitchens, plant rooms, laundry areas, electrical risers, guest rooms, and public spaces all present distinct fire hazards. We specify and install a full range of fire suppression technologies to mitigate these risk

Installation is only the beginning. We offer full handover documentation, fire strategy integration, and testing in line with BS 9251, BS 8489, and manufacturer specifications.
